

AIA DesignNight 2022 a Success

AIA DesignNight 2022 was expertly hosted by Peter Sagal, host of NPR's "Wait Wait... Don't Tell Me!".

Award winners and sponsors including Eggersmann had designated reserved seats in the pavilion area in Millennium Park's Great Lawn.

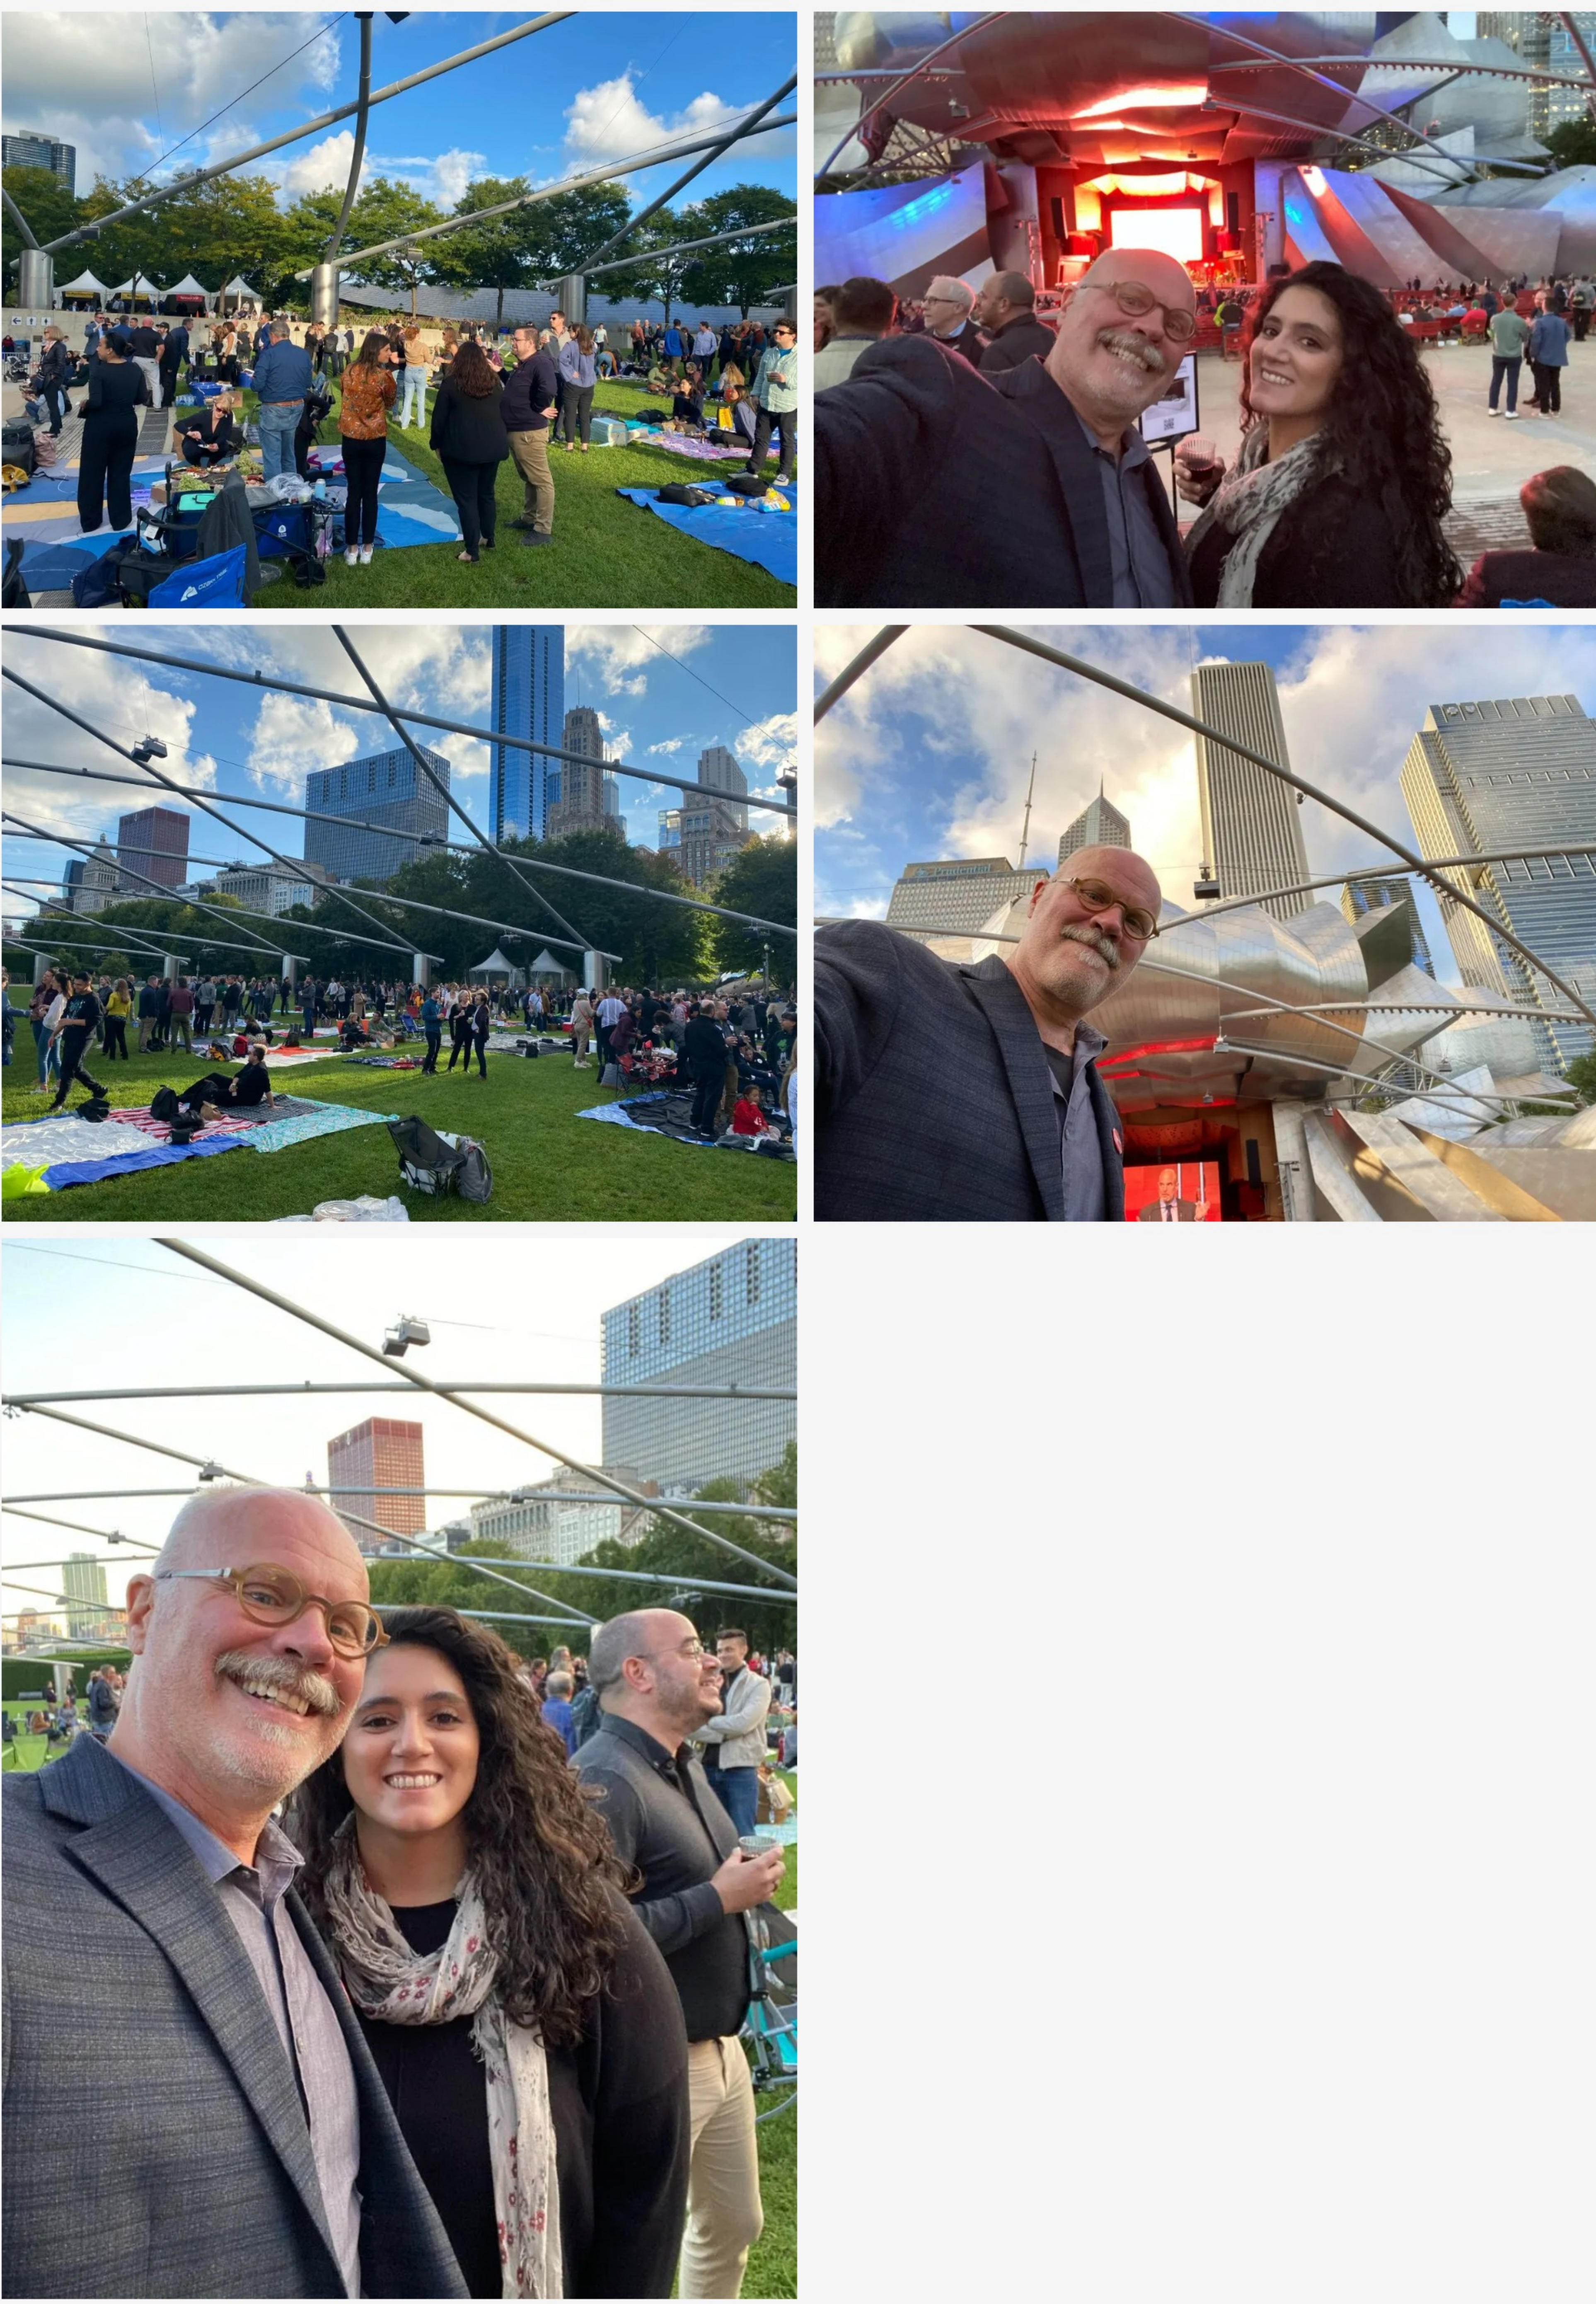

New AIA DesignNight Format

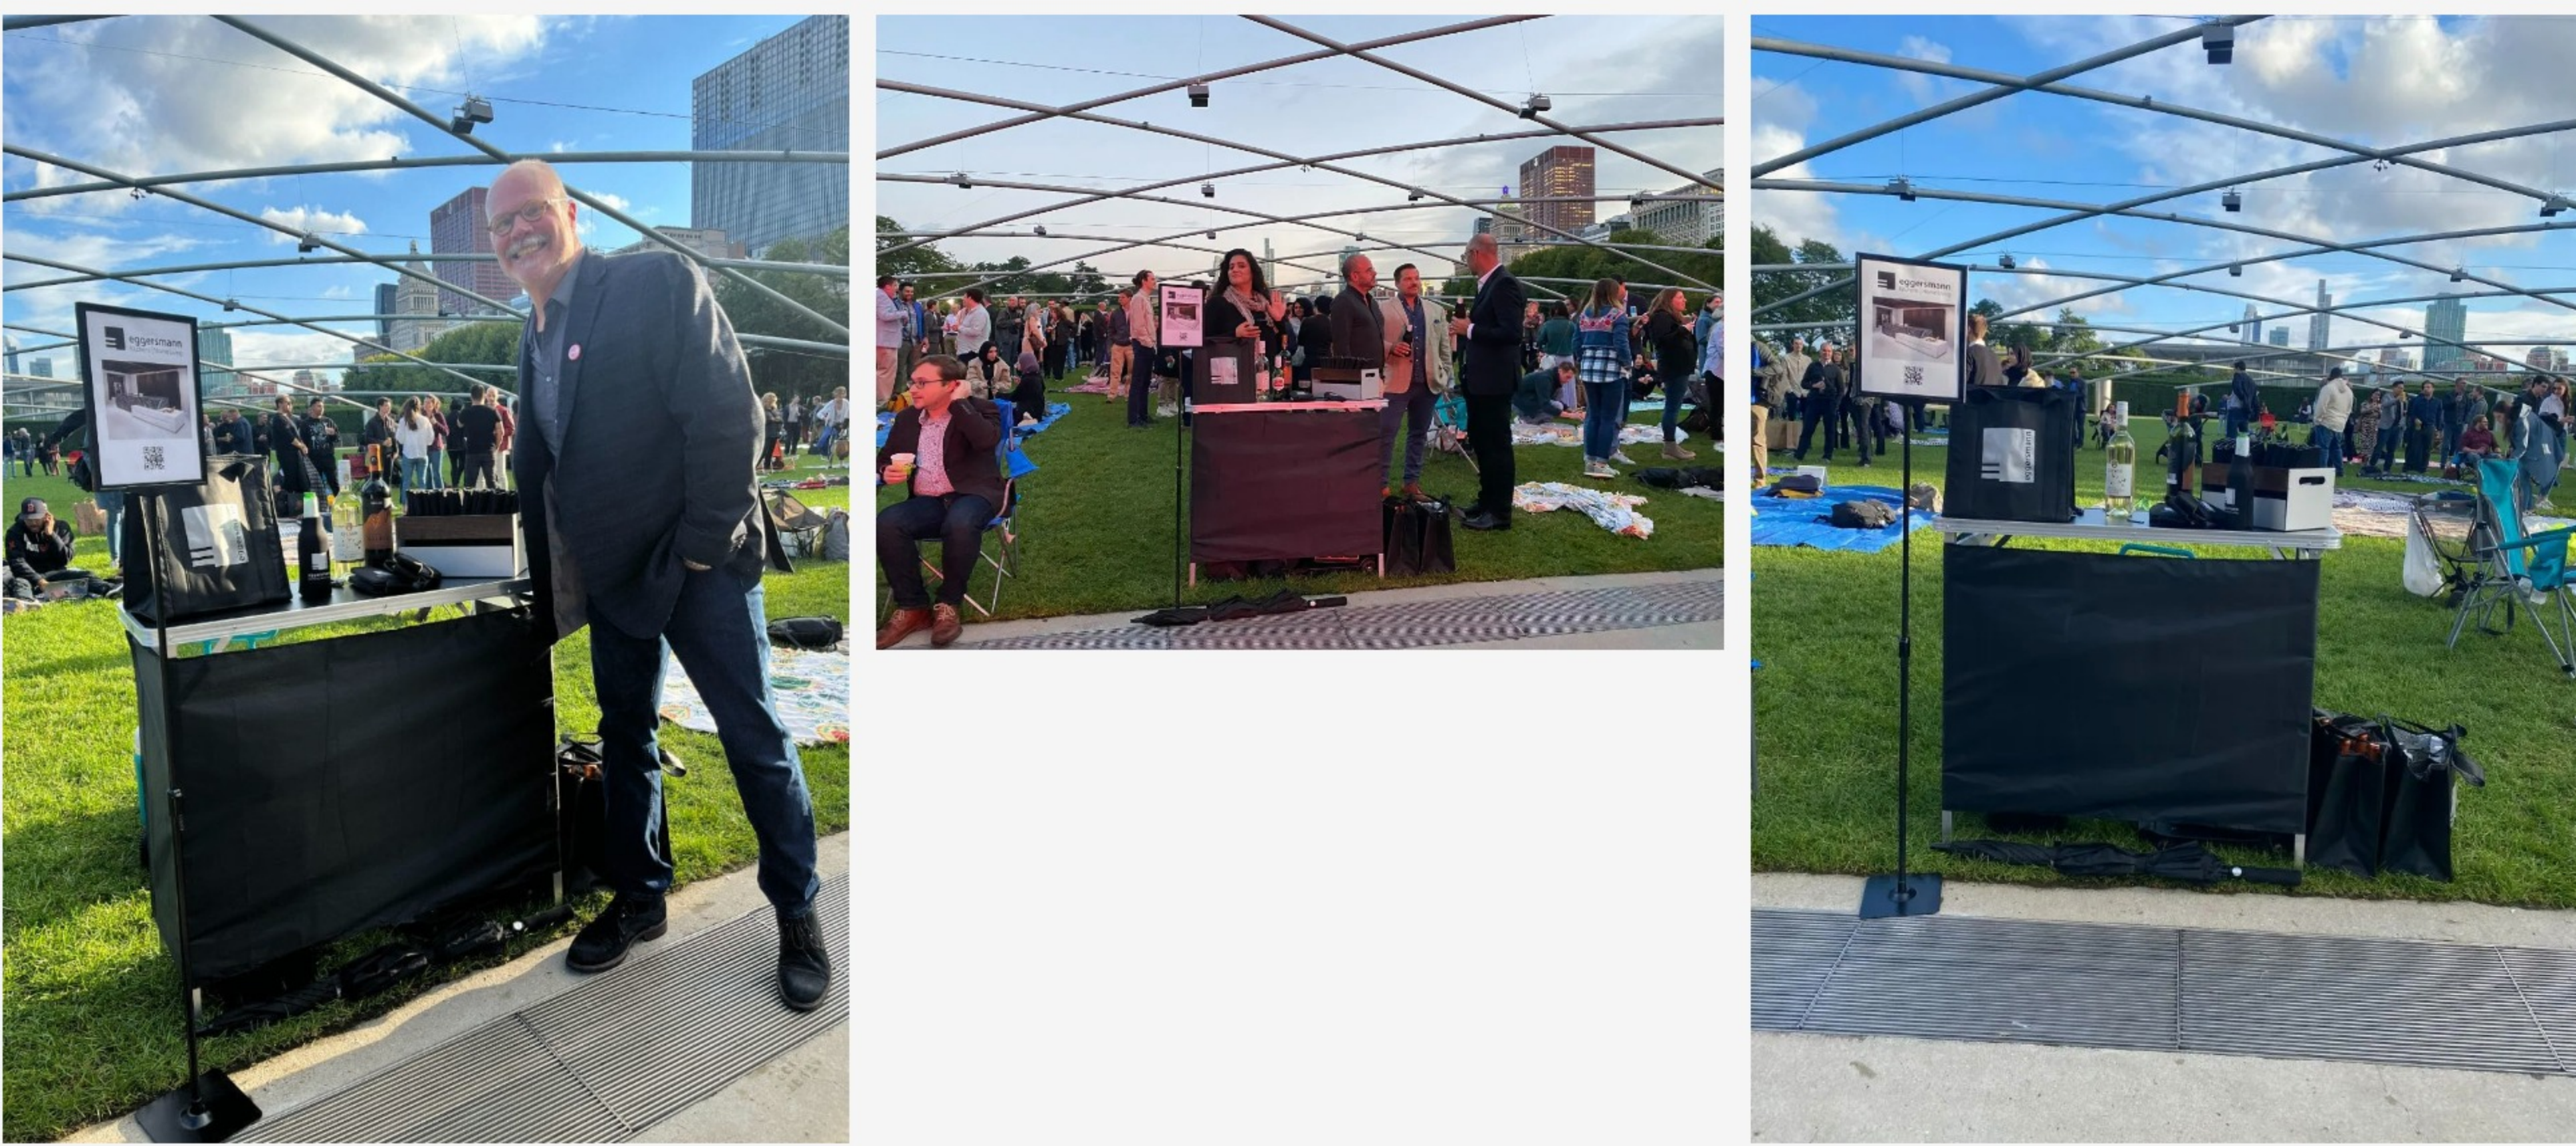

We like it! Traditionally, DesignNight award events have been each firm having a private table at Navy Pier's Aon Grand Ballroom. Only a limited number of people from a firm get to attend.

The new format at the Jay Pritzker Pavilion spilling onto the Great Lawn provided the space for architects to bring an unlimited number of family, friends, and colleagues. It was also open to the public. It made for a real celebration. Attendees setup chairs, blankets, food spreads, and beverages throughout The Great Lawn. Once the awards show concluded, people stayed to listen to the band and mingle.

Our own eggersmann Chicago designers, Harold Skulte and Diana Stavropoulos were in the middle of the action.
